Attorney General Maura Healey Endorsed by Environmental League of Massachusetts Action Fund PAC
Credit to Strong Commitment to the Environment and Building our Green Economy

BOSTON – The Environmental League of Massachusetts Action Fund PAC has endorsed Maura Healey for Attorney General, a credit to her commitment to the environment.

“Attorney General Healey has been a tireless defender of the environment for the residents of Massachusetts,” stated ELM Action Fund Executive Director Joe O’Brien. “She has led the fight to block the Trump Administration’s attacks on air and water protections, public health, and efforts to open our pristine coastal water to offshore drilling. She has also taken on the fossil fuel industry and demanded that they be held accountable for their role in contributing to global warming.”

Attorney General Healey has been an avid defender of ratepayers against unfair charges for electricity and natural gas. She has fought to protect consumers from fraud, exposing companies for misleading investors and consumers about the true effects of fossil fuels on climate change.

“Attorney General Healey is ensuring Massachusetts keeps moving forward,” said ELM Action Fund President Elizabeth Henry. “She is a strong, unifying leader who will continue to protect Massachusetts residents against polluters and other environmental dangers.”

Maura Healey began serving as Massachusetts Attorney General in January 2015. Prior to her election, she worked in the Attorney General’s office, first as Chief of the Civil Rights Division and then directing the Public Protection & Advocacy Bureau and the Business & Labor Bureau. She attended Harvard College, then played professional basketball in Austria for two years before returning to Massachusetts to attend Northeastern University for law school.
